TWO WOMEN NAMED

MacDonald Does Not Envy Job of Conservatives in Running Government

(By the Associated Press)
LONDON, Oct. 30.—The people of Great Britain returned the Conservative party to power by one of the strongest majorities recorded during the last century.

In this sweeping political change the Liberal party has sunk to the weakest position it has held since the reorganization of British politics more than 90 years ago at the time of the reform bill.

With 545 out of the 615 seats in the house of commons accounted for at 4 o'clock this afternoon the Liberals had won only 37 and the Conservatives had already captured 359 and were increasing their lead constantly. As the returns came in from the country districts, Labor had won 137 seats and was thus assured of being the official opposition in the new parliament.

Only two of the 14 women who were candidates in the election were successful in winning seats in the house of commons. They were Lady Astor, conservative, candidate for Plymouth and Miss Wilkinson, Labor candidate for Middleboro East.

CARDISS, Wales, Oct. 30.—Prime Minister MacDonald stopped here on his way to London, declared in reply to a call for a speech, that a defeat sometimes was the finest thing that could happen to any party. He asserted that with the present state of trade and the general outlook he did not envy the Conservatives of their job.

(By the Associated Press)

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 30.—Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for vice-president traveled across Missouri to St. Joseph to deliver tonight in the territory west of the Mississippi his final attack on the La Follette independent candidacy. Comparing the present campaign to a boxing match, Mr. Dawes here last night declared that Senator La Follette "like many people in fighting had begun to weaken in about the 13th round."

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The third statement of a series prepared by John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for president, for the purpose of summing up outstanding campaign issues was made public today. It was confined exclusively to a discussion of the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill which the candidate has declared will be re-written if he is elected and is given the support of a Democratic congress.

In renewing his contention for lower schedules, Mr. Davis made it clear that he harbored no resentment against legitimate enterprises fairly conducted, but would "withdraw special favors extended in the form of exorbitant rates of duties which make possible monopolistic control of production, markets and prices."

LITTLE WOMAN IS SILENT ON CHARGE

Handles Needle While Accusers Ask About Famous Robbery

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—A quiet little woman sat all day yesterday in the office of the United States postal inspector at the federal building absorbed in a bit of cross stitch embroidery.

She took her attention from the needlework only long enough to assure questioners that she had nothing to say until she talked with her attorney. That was Avis Glascock, wife of Brentwood Glascock, said by postal inspectors to be the manager of the Roundout mail robbery, the loot of which was two million dollars, most of it still hidden.

Since they were brought to Chicago Tuesday night from Battle Creek sanitarium they have been held on $100,000 bonds, pending hearing November 12.

Glascock after a day and night of questioning still said he knew nothing of the robbery. As for Avis her voice is well modulated and she is a disappointment to any ambitious flapper bandit. She wore a $5 hat, a nondescript brown coat and cheap ready made wool dress, no rouge or marcel waves and no fancy hose or shoes. Yet of the four women questioned about the robbery she alone is accused. Coming from a country town in eastern Kansas, training for a nurse, graduated from the University Hospital of Oklahoma City in 1916. She nursed in Topeka, Wichita and Oklahoma City and other Kansas and Oklahoma towns. A year ago she married. About her life as Glascock's wife she was silent.

The last three victims have died at approximately the same hour on three successive mornings, all of them become violent before death.

Eleven additional men suffering from the strange poisoning were brought to the hospital bringing to date the total number to 33.

Last night doctors at the hospital announced that they had discovered an antidote of which they hoped to save Fuson's life but he died in the same violent manner as did the others.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Only 10 of the 45 workers in the research laboratory at the Bayway plant of the Standard Oil company have failed to show symptoms of loss of reason to date it was announced today. Eleven more sufferers from the mysterious gas that has caused four deaths and robbed many of their sanity were brought to the Reconstruction hospital here yesterday bringing total number of victims to 31.

Announcement by doctors at the hospital that an antidote has been discovered brought hope to families of the sufferers who were alarmed earlier in the day by the death of Will Kreege, 29. Dr. Maximin Tounart was given credit for the discovery which is injecting hypodermic of soda into the veins of the sufferers.

It was believed the antidote will save the life of Hubert Fuson of Elizabeth who was near death when treatment was given him and has already shown signs of improvement.

That the federal government will take a hand in the investigation was revealed by an announcement that experts of the bureau of mines will arrive this afternoon to study the nature of the gas.

Over Two Thousand Expected To Assemble in College Here

GRID GAME FEATURE

Round of Pleasure and Work In Store for Pedagogy Meeting Here

East Central State Teachers college opened her doors today to receive her matured products, who had in years previous gone out into the world of pedagogy to take their places in the upbuilding of educational advantages.

"Hello-ills" and "Glad-to-See-You-Again, Johns," were being exchanged with firm handshakes after months of confinement to classrooms throughout the East Central district, when friend met friend and teacher met teacher out at East Central this morning.

While a number of teachers had motored to Ada at an early hour this morning, the bulk of pilgrims were expected to arrive on noon trains and carriers tonight with the prospect of swelling the attendance to over 2000 teachers, the largest any teachers conference has ever boasted in Ada.

While friends were exchanging greetings at their first meeting this morning, plans were busily progressing for the most enjoyable and profitable meeting in the history of the East Central district.

Instructors and students at East Central expressed determination to make this reunion the greatest ever at the Alma Mater. Every instructor at the College has a part to play in making the success of the meeting assured from entertainment and education standpoints. Students, who will soon fill the gaps in the ranks of teachers of the district, are busy at the task of making their visitors comfortable. Students and teachers are assigned to trains to convey teacher visitors to their homes in Ada during the convention.

Corps of Workers Busy.

At the college a corps of workers are on duty to register and assign rooms to visitors as well as to serve in meeting other needs of the visitors during their stay here. Every minute of the annual meeting here will be filled with bits of the program, which is expected to leave a warm feeling for East Central and Ada in the hearts of the teachers of the district. General and departmental assemblies of the meeting have been arranged in conjunction with the program of entertainment.

Seldom has any similar gathering boasted of such an array of learned men, prominent speakers and leaders in the educational world as at this meeting. Among the list of prominent visitors here are some of the brightest minds of America's schoolroom.

The entertainment program of the meeting is none the less attractive for visitors. Three banquets have been arranged to receive the teachers. The alumni banquet will be held tonight. The banquet at which the Lions and Kiwanis clubs will entertain teachers will be held tomorrow noon and the Red Rose banquet Friday night.

The keynote of the annual pilgrimage of district teachers is the home-coming game. This year, East Central's Tigers face the teachers from Tahlequah in order to give the former students their annual thrill.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon the teams were scattered over the Park field ready for the first whistle. Tahlequah's team arrived last night and were ready for the first whistle. A number of fans accompanied the team here.

The grandstand and temporary stands began filling at an early hour this afternoon and continued to receive the invasion of teachers. Bands and pep organizations were giving rousing demonstrations for the benefit of the visitors.

Canning Demonstration.
A home canning demonstration was given in the home of Mrs. John L. Boring, two and one-half miles south of Ada Tuesday when the high school class in domestic training with their teacher Mrs. Charlie Bobbitt—about twenty-five in number—went down to see the real process of canning meats in the home.

A well fed young calf had been killed and dressed the night before and everything in readiness when the students accompanied by Mrs. Orville Sneed and Miss Myrtle Grisham of the College and Mrs. Duvall, arrived.

Mrs. Boring has a well equipped kitchen with running water, sink, large ice box, and a large wood range with plenty of space for the pressure cookers which are used in the canning of meats. The meats are canned generally in No. 3 cans and when the work was completed and cans counted there were found to be about sixty cans of various kinds and hardly half of the animal yet used. A lovely assortment of choice dishes will be found on the Boring table this winter when she opens cans of swiss steak, plain steak, roast beef, chili, soup stock, hash, pot roast rib roast and corned beef.

The sewing demonstrator from A. and M. College at Stillwater was in Ada Monday and Tuesday of this week with Mrs. Duvall making plans for her annual visit to the clubs of Pontotoc county. The date of her coming will be announced later.

East, West—Home's Best
With the coming of cooler weather every homemaker's thoughts inevitably turn to making her home prettier cozier and more up-to-date than ever before.

Little touches here and there work wonders in creating a new atmosphere. Even one of those new, easily made and cheery-to-behold waste baskets will contribute a lot toward accomplishing this end. In the past, this humble receptacle was considered only from the standpoint of utility. Whether it was slightly or unsightly, was entirely beside the point. Thoughtful homemakers have come to realize that this necessary adjunct offers unlimited possibilities in the way of new adventures in home decoration.

The ultra smart waste basket must be in keeping with the purpose of the room and in harmony with the color scheme. The gift shops are showing the ordinary papier-mache and tin ones completely metamorphosed with cretonne or batik paper, a little ribbon, gold braid and a bit of enamel. The more elaborate with laces, gold braid and flower sprays.

Add four well beaten eggs, one cup of black walnut meats. Dissolve a level teaspoon of soda in a tablespoon of warm water. Flour the fruits thoroughly from a pint of flour then mix the remainder, as follows:
In a large bowl, put the well beaten eggs, sugar, spices and salt, in one teacup of milk. Stir in the fruit, chopped nuts, bread crumbs and suet, one after the other, until all are used, putting in the dissolved soda, last, and adding enough flour to make the fruit stick together which will require all the pint.
Boil or steam, four hours. Serve with wine, brandy or any well flavored sauce.

Fortune Telling is Important in Hallowe'en Fun
Quaint Customs for Hallowe'en Have Survived Many Years

By Mary K. Ashbrook
Hallowe'en is the one day of the whole year on which Christian nations still turn to pagan beliefs—if not in the spirit of reverence at least in the spirit of fun. The superstitions which cling to Hallowe'en make it a favorite night for parties, and fortune telling games which were once believed in absolutely are still popular with those who try to believe in them, for one night in the year at least.

One of the early Hallowe'en customs in Ireland was the eating of a vegetable dish for the Hallowe'en supper which was called "callan-non". This is made of mashed potatoes, parsnips and chopped onions. A ring is buried in the dish and the one who receives it in his serving will be married within the year and if already married will be lucky.

Green herbs called "livelong" were gathered by children during the summer and hung up. If these plants were still green on Hallowe'en, the owner of that particular plant would have luck for the coming year. If the plant had died, so would the child who had hung it up.

Ball of Yarn Is Thrown.
Another early custom was for a girl to throw a ball of blue yarn from a window, holding tightly to the end of the yarn while she repeated the creed backwards, while winding the yarn around her hand. When she had the yarn almost wound she would expect the other end to be held and upon inquiring who held it, would hear the wind whisper the name of her sweetheart.

A young man would walk around on Hallowe'en night with nine grains of oats in his mouth until he heard a girl's name spoken. This would be the name of his future wife.

One of the Hallowe'en superstitions in Scotland during early days was that a person who carried a three-legged stool to a place where three roads met and sat upon it at midnight would hear the names of persons who would die within the coming year. If the person carried with him gifts to throw to the fairies at the time the names were called, the fairy would be pleased and spare the life of the one named.

Candles Tell Wedding Date.
Cabbage broth was a regular part of the meal on Hallowe'en in Scotland. A mashed potato dish, like the one used in Ireland or a dish of mush in which was dropped a ring and a key was served. The ring of course signified marriage, and the key, a journey.

It was the custom for a girl to sit before a mirror, at midnight on Hallowe'en so that the moonlight would shine on the glass. Cutting an apple into nine pieces and holding each on the point of a knife before eating it and watching in the glass as she ate, she would see the vision of her lover appear over her left shoulder and ask for the last piece.

In Germany a girl walks around a church three times on Hallowe'en night and makes a wish. To determine the month of one's wedding, twelve lighted candles are placed in a row on the floor and the person jumps over them. The first one which is blown out in this manner determines the wedding month.

Mirrors Are Employed.
Letters may be cut from paper and floated on a pan of water. As they move together they form words which determine the name or occupation of the future husband. Letters are carved on a pumpkin and a blindfolded person stabs at these with a pin. Fate will guide his hand to the initials of his future wife.

Girls walk backward down cellar stairs on Hallowe'en night carrying a lighted candle and a mirror and watch for the reflection of their future husbands in the glass. A dish of earth a dish of water and a dish containing a ring are placed side by side. A person is blindfolded and reaches toward the dishes. Touching the earth is a sign of early death, the ring is a sign of an early marriage and the water a sign that he will never marry.

A Canadian custom is to hold a thread over a lamp and count slowly until the thread burns in two. The number counted before the thread parts denotes the number of years before the person marries.

"In fact, the mothers of Charlotte were really responsible for the discovery of Liv-O-Lax."
"It happened in this way—
"I was in the retail drug business for twenty-five years. Nearly every day, some woman would come into my store and say—'Haven't you some liquid remedy that I could give the children in place of calomel? I hate to give them calomel. I cannot get them to take castor oil and they cannot swallow a pill.'"
A Real Discovery
"This set me to thinking and experimenting, but it was only after a long period of trying out numbers of prescriptions that looked good but always failed in some particular that I at last hit upon a mixture that does the work. I named it Liv-O-Lax because it serves a double purpose, relieving congested liver and constipation at the same time. It is easy to take and children like it."
"For several years I made Liv-O-Lax just to fill the daily demands I have mentioned, in my own store, but when finally the reputation of Liv-O-Lax spread from Charlotte into the surrounding towns and counties, I had to give up my drug store and go to manufacturing Liv-O-Lax in a large way."

Political Reviews of States

NORTH CAROLINA—The Republican party has entered a full state ticket, has a candidate for the United States Senate and is competing in eight of the ten congressional districts of the state. Only in the third and fourth districts are the Democrats unopposed.

TENNESSEE—There is in this state a contest between Republicans and Democrats for Governor and the United States Senate, as well as railroad commissioner, and the commissioner, and the congressional races. There is no Democratic candidate for Congress in the first district, where the race is between a Republican and an independent Republican. Democrats are unopposed in the fourth, sixth and seventh districts.

ARKANSAS—Five of Arkansas' seven congressional districts will have contests, the Republicans having named candidates in the second, third, fourth, fifth and seventh districts. The state election in Arkansas is held in October.

FLORIDA—There is a full state ticket and candidates for Congress in all Florida districts except the third.

ALABAMA—The Republicans in this state have a chance to vote for a full state ticket and five candidates for Congress. Contests for Congress will be waged in the first, third, fifth, tenth and seventh districts.

MISSISSIPPI—Republican electors have been placed on the Mississippi ticket, but the attorney general's office has ruled that candidates for Congress on the Republican ticket can not be included, as they were nominated in convention and not a primary.

LOUISIANA—The situation in Louisiana differs from other states in the South in that, while candidates for Congress are in the field, names of LaFollette-Wheeler electors have been refused places on the ticket. The secretary of state has taken the position that petitioners for such must be voters who had declared themselves independent of the Democratic and Republican parties.

VIRGINIA—The state of Virginia has a Republican candidate for the United States Senate, and Democratic candidate have opposition in the second, sixth, seventh and ninth congressional districts.

SOUTH CAROLINA—In South Carolina the Republicans made no nominations for state officers or representatives in Congress, because Democratic nominations are usually equivalent to election. Republican voters, however, will have an opportunity to cast their ballots for presidential electors.

GEORGIA—In this state three presidential tickets are in the November contest but no opposition to the regular Democratic candidates for state offices has developed.

TEXAS—A woman nominated for governor on the Democratic ticket, United States; an active member of the first time a major party has nominated a woman for governor in the United States; an active Republican campaign, and a bitter feeling over the Ku Klux Klan issue have made a real campaign for the November election this fall in Texas, where the midsummer Democratic primaries are customarily equivalent to election.

Republicans and opponents of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, Democratic candidate for governor, alike have joined issue against what they term "Fergusonism," making a stronger attack than usual against the traditional success of the Democrats.

James E. Ferguson, former governor, husband of the Democratic nominee, was impeached in 1917 on charges, among others, of misapplication of the state funds. A court injunction kept his name off the ticket in the primary as a candidate for governor and his wife's name was substituted. In the first primary she was second, but no one had a majority, and the two high candidates entered a second primary in which she won.

The Republicans and Ferguson's opponents in the Democratic ranks charge that if his wife is elected he will be governor by subterfuge, that the placing of his wife's name on the ballot was really a trick to make him governor in the fact of a legislative enactment which declared him precluded from holding office in this state. This issue of "Fergusonism" has been clearly raised by the Republican nominee.

The Ku Klux Klan was the sole issue in the run-off primary in which Mrs. Ferguson won. The Klan candidate was defeated, and while the platforms of both parties denounced the Klan by name and both candidates were opposed to the organization, nevertheless the Klan still an issue, because many members of the order announced they could not support Mrs. Ferguson at would vote with the Republicans on the governorship. The Republicans are expected this year to poll the largest Republican vote in the history of this rock-ribbed Democratic state.

On the surface Mrs. Ferguson's nomination had nothing to do with woman suffrage or the woman movement. As for national issues, this all Texas is a nation unto itself in which the issues of the national campaign have been little mentioned. The Republican nominee for governor, Dr. George C. Butler, is an educator of high standing, who resigned the deanship of the law school at the University of Texas to make this race.

The state has two Democratic United States senators, 17 Democratic congressmen and one Republican congressman. The only congressional fight is in the fourteenth district, where Congressman Harry Wurzbach, Republican, is up for reelection. The LaFollette people have no ticket in the field, except for presidential electors.

KENTUCKY—Although Kentucky has no state election to settle on the November ballot, a state issue a proposal for $75,000,000 good road and school bonds, overshadowed interest in the presidential, senatorial and congressional races. The bond issue developed into one of the warmest non-political fights in Kentucky for years. Gov. W. J. Fields, Democrat, has been the outstanding proponent of the bond issue, while the opposition has had several prominent men of both major political parties on the stump against the issue.

Six parties were on the presidential ballot: Democratic, Republican, Independent (LaFollette-Wheeler), Socialist-Labor, Commonwealth and American.

Ten of the eleven incumbents seek re-election to the lower house of Congress. Joe W. Morris, who was appointed to fill the vacancy created by the death of J. Campbell Cantrell, did not enter the recent primary.

The outstanding contest in the congressional race is that of John W. Langley, Republican, who, although under conviction in federal court for conspiracy to illegally remove whiskey from a government warehouse, seeks re-election. He has based his campaign on what he terms a plea for "vindication" at the hands of his constituents.

OKLAHOMA—Party affiliations have been partly forgotten in the United States senatorial race in Oklahoma between J. C. Walton, former governor, the Democratic nominee, and W. B. Pine, Oklahoma oil millionaire, Republican.

Pine, who received the support of the Ku Klux Klan in the primary, has declared he is not in sympathy with alleged practices of the Klan, and that the Klan is not an issue in the election. Walton has continued the fight on the Klan which he inaugurated during the primary contest. While Pine has devoted most of his addresses to national issues, stressing the need for conservatism, he has occasionally attacked Walton's record as governor. Walton has given virtually all of his addresses to attacks on the Klan.

Within the state Democratic ranks a rift has developed over support of Walton. Mrs. O. H. Calky, former state vice-chairman, leading a revolt against the former governor. Campbell Russell, a Democrat, former corporation commission chairman, and bitter foe of Walton, entered the senatorial race as an independent. Throughout the state anti-Walton clubs have been organized. They have not concentrated on any other candidate, although several Democratic leaders, political opponents of Walton, have declared for Pine. On the other hand, some Republicans who opposed the Klan deserted the Pine banner for Walton.

In the presidential race, four parties are on the ballot. Democratic, Republican, Farmer-Labor and Socialist.

The Klan issue affected congressional and all state races, although in a less degree than in the senatorial contest. Seven of the state's eight congressmen seek re-election. The political candidacies in Oklahoma this year are held entirely by men. The prohibition issue has not been raised.

Life of Truant Officer in Mountain Regions Unpleasant

CHICAGO, Oct. 28—The life of a truant officer in the southern mountains is as varied and as dangerous as that of a revenue officer. He is unwelcome in the homes of the mountaineers, and fathers help their sons to avoid his clutches, according to the report of the Inner Mission Board of the United Lutheran Church in America, now in session in this city.

Folks who crowd in the mountains of remote parts of southwest Virginia fear to have their children attend the public schools maintained by the state as it makes them restless and dissatisfied and from the mountaineer's viewpoint, apparently serves no permanent good. But schools established by the Lutheran church hold no terrors, for they know that the church is striving to be of service. This unique situation is behind the plan of the Inner Mission Board in establishing day-schools and boarding-schools at central locations for the vocational and religious education of the mountain children. The beginnings of this plan are contained in the report of that board, presented at today's conference.

The confidence which these people have in the church has brought about the remarkable success of a day-school established in the summer of 1923 in Currin Valley, near Marion Va. Because there was no room for any sort available for the establishment of the school, an abandoned box-car in a railroad siding was put in to service and is still being used until a school-room and chapel can be completed this winter. Children of all ages are being taught to read and write and adults are invited to participate in frequent religious services.

At Konnarock, Va., a piece of land has been offered by the local lumber dealer for the erection of a school building and dormitory during the current year, and the establishment of a boarding-school where boys and girls will receive a strictly Christian vocational training.

Immigrant Touch Felt
A most important phase of the work of the Inner Mission Board is the development of a workable plan for keeping in touch with the immigrant to America from the time he leaves his home church in the old country until he reaches his new home in the United States and is affiliated with the local Lutheran parish. "The task," says the board, "is a five-fold one—work at the port of New York; (2) work at other American ports; (3) work in Canada; (4) establishing contact at fourteen ports from which our people are coming; and (5) follow up the work."

The board has reported on the welfare and progress of 61 inner mission institutions of the United Lutheran church throughout the country, including 6 orphan's homes, 9 old people's homes, 2 orphan's and old people's homes, 1 home for defectives, 3 hospices, 1 hospital, 1 seamen's mission, 2 deaconess motherhouses, 8 miscellaneous institutions, and 8 city missions and inner mission societies, controlled or supported entirely by the United Lutheran church and 4 orphan's homes, 1 old people's home, 2 homes for defectives, 5 hospices, 2 hospitals, 2 seamen's and immigrant missions, 1 deaconess motherhouse and 7 city mission societies, in the operation of which the United Lutheran church participates.

ANOTHER TUNNEL OPENED TO CONNETT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—A blast of dynamite 150 feet below the surface of Hudson river late yesterday completed another of the underway passages that bind New York and New Jersey. Six feet of rock was blown away and the vehicular tunnel in process of construction for two years was opened. Another year of work will be put into the tube before it is turned over for public use.

The chief engineer, Clifford M. Holland, who had directed the operation until his illness, died Monday at Battle Creek, Michigan, without seeing his dream come true.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

LABOR NOT TO BE RICH: cease from thine own wisdom. For riches certainly make themselves wings; they fly away.—Proverbs 23:4, 5.

UNIVERSITY PRESIDENTS FOR DAVIS.

A very significant fact is the number of University Presidents who were formerly Republicans, that have announced their intention of voting for John W. Davis. Among them are President Hibben of Princeton; Charles W. Elliott, President Emeritus of Harvard; Harry R. Garfield, a son of former President Garfield, President of Williams College, and Dr. McCracken, President of Vassar College. Dr. McCracken has fired a very heavy shot at Mr. Coolidge, in a recent letter. He says, "I shall work for Davis, because I prefer a man to a myth. I know something about Davis. I know he is a leading lawyer of the American Bar. I know his opinion on every great issue. His record is an open book. He is a man of utter integrity. I trust him."

"I know nothing about Coolidge. He is a myth. Secrecy surrounds him. I can't find out the truth about his record as Governor. I don't even know whether he wrote the magazine articles he signed when he was Vice-President. What else he did as Vice-President I don't know. He sat at Cabinet meetings with Fall and Denby and Daugherty, and could see no reason for change when he came to select his own Cabinet. He is an edited man. He was put together in a publicity office and he will be plausible just as long as he can find some one to tell him what to think."

Oklahoma is not measuring up as well in contributions to the Republican national campaign fund as it did four years ago. At that time oil was selling for $3.50 per barrel and the producers and refiners were making money hand over fist. However, they wanted a change and out of their abundance they sent liberal amounts to help bring about the change. They got the change all right and then when oil fell to $1.00 per barrel they sent a delegation to Washington to beseech the framers of the new tariff bill to give them a duty on oil in order to shut out Mexican competition. Right here they struck a snag. The bill was framed for the protection of New England and the East, and the Standard company, which controlled most of the Mexican output, did not want a duty on oil. Hence President Harding turned the cold shoulder on the Oklahoma delegation. These fellows were considered "some pumpkins" at home but found themselves very small potatoes with the party leaders at Washington.

The Fordney tariff law gave the president power to lower or raise some duties on imports should conditions warrant such action. The tariff commission recommended a cut in the duties on sugar, but the president has taken no action. It is not likely that he will for it is not often that a New England Republican favors a reduction of tariff duties. Senator LaFollette asserts that in the meantime American consumers are being made to pay $1,000,000 per week in the way of higher prices for sugar. Pretty soft for the trust but tough on the other folks.

The Oklahoma City News is going ahead with the publication of income tax returns and will scrap it out with anyone who objects. Really, it would be some joke to throw the returns open to the public, permit speakers to refer to them and then bar the press. In other words, anybody but the newspapers could make any use he pleased of this information, but the press must keep hands off, according to some of the powers that be, including Attorney General Stone. Now that these figures are made public records open to the public, we do not see how the papers can be barred.

The News extends its hand in old fashioned western greeting to the hundreds of teachers who are now in possession of the city. With most of them it is just a home-coming, for it was here that they were prepared for their life work and they always felt at home. In fact, Ada has friends in every community in this part of the state as the result of the influence of East Central. If any strangers are in the crowd we know they will not be strangers long. Coming here once will make fast friends of most of them.

Helium gas promises to be a very vital element in the handling of dirigibles. It is about as light as hydrogen and is not explosive as is the case with hydrogen. This gas was discovered in the sun through spectrum analysis long before it was found on this planet. Now that some natural gas is found to carry it a factory has been established at Fort Worth to separate it and keep it stored up for use in such vessels as the Shenandoah and ZR-3. The United States has a monopoly on it thus far.

As the campaign approaches the end the talk of the possibility of a deadlock and the throwing of the election into congress increases. Evidently those who are best informed on the political situation have come to the conclusion that this is a strong probability.

The Forum of the Press

The Fourteenth Amendment.

(Dearborn Independent)

Much more than the incumbency of the customs collectorship of the port of New Orleans is affected in the application for an injunction to prevent the appointee, a Negro, assuming the duties of that office. Grounds for the petition allege that the appointee is not a citizen of the United States, and is not eligible to citizenship, because of his African blood.

To sustain the petition, it is alleged that the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States was never lawfully ratified by the required number of states, nor was it legally adopted for submission by congress.

Oddly enough, among a large number of Supreme Court decisions affecting the amendment, not one has applied to the basic allegations of the petition, according to the counsel for the petitioners, and the question is brought up after the amendment has been operative for half a century.

When the Constitution of the United States was adopted, it was especially approved by popular vote among the colonies, Jefferson and his colleagues insisting that the various assemblies, as the legislatures then termed, might not represent the popular will on a question not at issue in their election. Curiously enough, the Constitution itself provided for legislative amendment at variance with this principle. Had not this change escaped attention at the time this suit could never have been started, for by the popular vote at the time the Fourteenth Amendment, the word "white" would not have been stricken from the Constitution in the provision defining eligibility to citizenship.

The United States was a white man's government. In the strictest sense of the term until the Fourteenth Amendment was proposed, purely as a political measure. Before that time, too, the question of eligibility to the franchise was a function of the state. It remained so after its adoption, until the supplemental amendment providing that no state shall disqualify a citizen on account of "race, color or previous condition of servitude."

The attempt to force Negro suffrage in individual states failed, popular prejudice being sufficient to defeat it at the polls. Democracy was fast overcoming the dominant party, however, and the accession of millions of votes seemed vital. For that reason the Fourteenth Amendment was forced through. Forced, we say it without prejudice, since Michigan, for example, which refused to change its own constitution by a majority unprecedented in those days, was recorded as ratifying it, although the Legislature was elected at practically the same time, and thus reversed the expressed will of its constituents.

The South, under "carpet-bag" rule, obeyed the dictum of Washington, to the number of six states, and this vote is challenged in the petition.

It is hardly to be expected that a decision favorable to the petitioners will be reached by the courts, but if it is, only the legal presumption that acts by a de facto government are valid until de jure rights are decided will save many things that have been done in the last half century.

Many Candidates Expected to Mat Practice at O. U.

(By the Associated Press)

NORMAN, Oct. 30.—More than 30 candidates for the University of Oklahoma wrestling team are expected to report for practice following the appointment this week of Captain Edwin E. Schwen as wrestling coach, according to Ben G. Owen, director of athletics. Captain Schwen is an infantry officer of the University Reserve Officers Training Corps and succeeds "Ben" Tolbert who did not return to O. U. this year.

The new coach has announced that practice will start immediately, in preparation for the wrestling season which will open soon after the Christmas holidays.

Matches are being arranged with other Missouri Valley conference schools and with some of the stronger Oklahoma collegiate wrestling teams.

Captain Schwen was a member of the Yale wrestling team in the 125 pound class in 1912, 1913 and 1914. He has since taught wrestling in the army and the Y. M. C. A.

Many High Schools Expected to Enroll In Debating League

NORMAN, Oct. 29.—(Special).—More than 200 high schools in the eight districts of Oklahoma are expected to enroll in the state high school debating league by the time the intra-district elimination contests start in December, according to Harold Cookesey of the University of Oklahoma who is secretary of the league. This will represent a gain of 40 percent over last year's enrollment.

Five thousand copies of the bulletin representing both sides of the question, "Resolved: That the child labor amendment to the Federal Constitution should be adopted," are being printed for distribution among the high school debaters.

Winning teams from the eight districts will compete in Norman at the Interscholastic meet next May for the state championship.

WOMAN SHERIFF FILLS JOB GLAD IN PURPLE

CANTERBURY, England.—This ancient cathedral city has just revived a custom of medieval times by conferring the office of sheriff upon a woman. Incidentally the recipient of the honor, Mrs. Lucy Green Wells, the wife of a local tailor, has the distinction of being the only woman in England to hold such an office.

"My chief duty as sheriff," Mrs. Wells said recently, "is to appear with the mayor and councillors on special occasions wearing my purple robe, with the silver chain of office round my neck."

"Nowadays the under-sheriff is responsible for most of the actual work in connection with the office, but there are still certain functions I perform. If a Canterbury man had to be hanged, for instance, I believe I should have to sign the document certifying that the execution had been properly carried out."

There were women sheriffs aplenty in the middle ages, and in those days they had to shoulder heavy fiscal, military and administrative burdens. One of the first notable women of the middle ages to hold the office was Ella, Countess of Salisbury, who was sheriff of Wiltshire until she embraced religion and retired to the Abbey of Lacock.

BRAKE AT HEAD OF NEW INDUSTRY HERE

Ada Products Company Enjoys Healthy Business Despite Youth

W. A. Brake has recently established at 416-418 a new concern to Ada, where he manufactures potato chips, salted peanuts and whole-salt candy. The name of the concern is the Ada Products Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Brake and son George, formerly of Sulphur, are now residents of Ada and expect to make their home here. Their business is new and the only one of its kind in the city.

To give the consumers of potato chips a better appreciation of the delicate food the following is a sketch of the process of Irish spuds with the dirt on to the crisped chips.

First the potatoes are put into a peeler filled with water where they are washed and peeled by a hand cranked machine. Then they are spotted by the girls with carving knives, washed again and sliced and soaked in cold water to remove the starch. They are cooked in Mazola oil, which is very expensive but claimed to be much better than any substitute. The chips are taken from the extremely hot oil and drained, then weighed and sacked and are ready for packing and distribution.

Up until this time five persons have done the work and Mr. Brake has four salesmen employed for the distribution, making a total of nine employees even though the business is quite young. Their territory is in no way limited to Ada as might be expected. One salesman has headquarters at Hugo and works east to the Arkansas line and south to Red river. Another has headquarters at Holdenville and works west to Ryan and Waurika and north to Henryetta. Besides there are two salesmen in Ada.

Combined with the potato chip factory he has salted peanuts made from the raw Spanish, Georgia grown peanut. The peanuts are cooked in extremely hot Mazola oil drained, salted red hot, measured and sacked.

Mr. Brake also jobs candy. He is middle man for candy from the factory to the retailer.

South Africa produced over 9,133,000 ounces of gold in 1923. Sea-bathing is now forbidden to Turkish women living in Constantinople.

MRS. FERGUSON CLAIMS MAJORITY OF 250,000

DALLAS, Texas.—Supreme confidence that victory was just around the corner emanated from both political camps today as the state gubernatorial campaign entered its last days to determine whether Texas is to have the first woman governor in the world or the first Republican executive since reconstruction days.

Both candidates were hard at work with plans to continue the fight until the eve of the election.

Dr. George C. Butte, Republican nominee, reiterated predictions that he would succeed Gov. Pat Neff by a majority of 500,000 votes; while former Gov. James E. Ferguson, impeached executive, who is campaigning in behalf of his wife, claims the election by at least 200,000.

Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, Democratic nominee, estimated her probable majority next Tuesday at 250,000.

MADILL MEN HURT IN AUTO WRECK

MADILL.—(Special.)—While on their way to Linn, to fill a speaking date last Monday night, a party composed of Ed Long, candidate for sheriff; Judge George S. March, candidate for county attorney; Dave Faulk, candidate for state representative; F. J. Kim, secretary of the central committee of Marshall county, and a young man named Dunn, had an exciting experience when the car in which they were riding plunged off a bridge en route to Linn. Long was driving the car at a rate of 10 miles per hour and to this fact the occupants attribute their escape from death with only a few scratches and bruises.

The headlights of an approaching car being driven by George W. Bilbo, trustee of the United Eight Oil company, blinded Long, causing him to slow down to the 10-mile rate and as the wheels on the left of his car passed onto the bridge, the right wheels dropped off the bridge, where the car hung for a moment, spilling the occupants to the bed of creek, about 10 feet below the level of the road. The car then toppled and fell, smashing the top, windshield, fenders, etc.

Judge March sustained a bruised hip. Dave Faulk suffered a severe blow in his side. Other members of the party received a severe shock only.

Cars arriving immediately assisted the wrecked party to adjust their

Then he looked at her white face and read the fear in it. "If you tell me to stay, I'll stay," he said. "And the patient?" whispered Joan. "Will die. No, of course I shall go. Nothing could keep me from going."

"And the Patient?" whispered Joan. "Will die. No, of course I shall go. Nothing could keep me from going."

"You are right. Yes, of course you must go. But I am afraid," said Joan. "I am afraid of Myers."

He started, as if he, too, had been thinking of the secretary. "But the man can't harm me, dear," he said. "The message came from him," cried Joan in fear.

Lancaster looked away. But, when she repeated the question he answered, "No."

"He is at Avonmouth. Is he not there?" she asked.

"Well, Joan, I think he is," said Lancaster reluctantly. "But he may not be. I only know that the message was not from him."

"It was not from the hospital? Not from MacPherson?"

"It was from a man connected with the hospital," said Lancaster. "But it was not from MacPherson and not from Myers, and it did not mention Myers' name. Why, my dear, you mustn't give way to nerves now that I am losing mine. It is a simple request for me to operate tomorrow."

She pulled herself together. "Of course you must go, Joan," she said again. She put her arms about his neck. "Dear, if you should see that man, you will not fall into any trap that he may set for you?" she asked. "You are so strong, you will not let him trample on you? You are yourself again, and you will remain so for my sake?"

"Never fear!" he answered cheerfully. "I am not going to take morphine again. Why, I shall have none with me, my dear Joan, and I should have no opportunity to buy any, even if I wanted to. I shall operate here, as soon as I reach the hospital, and return on the morning train. I may not even go to my house at all."

"I am not afraid that you will take morphine," said Joan. "But you will not see Myers?"

"Not if I can help it. He can't come to the hospital, and I don't think he will dare to be in wait for me at the station. If he does, he'll find me a tough customer to kidnap in broad daylight. There, my dear, be calm and sensible, and when I return I shall tell you everything that you must know."

He kissed her and hurried in to pack his suitcase. He came out in a few moments and placed it in the buggy. "Good-by, Joan, dearest Joan."

HELL AND PURGATORY NOT THE SAME, ACCORDING TO DANTE'S "DIVINE COMEDY"

A study of "Inferno," the classical allegory by Dante, which is the basis for the William Fox production of that name now running at the American theatre, brings out the fact that Hell and Purgatory are not identical. According to the poet, who followed the Catholic interpretation of sin and its punishment, there are three separate states for the abode of the souls of mankind after death. They are Hell, Purgatory and Heaven. Hell and Heaven are the permanent states. Purgatory is an intermediate state, a temporary ground where "mortal" sinners (who have repented) and all "venial" sinners are committed until such time as God judges them ready to enter Heaven or Paradise.

Sin is any willful thought, word, deed or mission against the law of God. Sin is divided into two categories, Mortal and Venial. A mortal sin is marked by three distinct features, the lack of which automatically takes away the mortal significance of the sin; that the sin is committed with the full consent he said. "And you will not hint at our engagement to Mrs. Fraser while I am gone? I have very special reasons for this."

She shook her head and laughed, and returned his kiss, and all the while her heart grew heavier. And long after the buggy had disappeared from sight she stood upon the porch looking after it.

Chapter IX

That night was sleepless as the last, but all the joy that had filled her heart in the hill cabin was gone. She lay awake, listening to the rain that pattered on the roof, thinking and wondering. How strange her life had become, and how far away the old landmarks were! She had fought for a man's soul in darkness and snatched it into light, and now the darkness seemed closing about her again. And she could only hope and wait through endless hours.

In vain she tried to tell herself that it was only an ordinary summons. On the face of it, the call was natural; but Joan's instinct told her that there was more behind it. Myers had not surrendered his prey so easily as he had assumed to do. And Lancaster had been evasive to spare her, perhaps, but evasive. And her task now was only to wait.

At eight she rose. She imagined that he must have finished the operation some time before, and be at the station, or on his way there, but her soul could not go out to him across the distance, and their communion seemed to be cut short by the same impenetrable darkness. Dressing, she was conscious of a stronger presentiment of approaching evil which she could not shake away.

It was a gloomy day, and the rain came down in torrents. About eleven o'clock Doctor Jenkins arrived in his buggy and inquired for Lancaster. He seemed surprised to learn that he had gone to Avonmouth.

He was preparing to return, but Joan felt the need of speech with him irresistible. She did not mean to cross-examine him, she only wanted to shake off the feeling that Lancaster had passed out of her reach by speaking to one of his associates. She hardly knew the purpose of her accusing Jenkins until she saw the look of concern upon his face.

"Miss Wentworth, you aren't well!" he exclaimed. "You have been overdoing it!"

"No, Doctor Jenkins, but—Doctor Lancaster has gone into Avonmouth—"

"Yes, Miss Wentworth. But he won't come to any harm there, thanks to you. You've taught me a thing or two about morphine patients, Miss Wentworth," he went on, in his polite, complimentary fashion. "I never saw anyone get well as fast as Doctor Lancaster, nor any nurse that could handle a situation as you did," he added.

"Yes, but it was not really morphine, you know," said Joan, and then she almost gaped in astonishment. What had she said? Why had she said it?

Doctor Jenkins was staring at her too. "Not morphine, you say, Miss Wentworth?" he stammered.

"I mean, the symptoms weren't those of morphine poisoning," said Joan.

"Oh, well, Miss Wentworth, everybody takes it in a different way," he answered. "Yes, I reckon it was morphine right enough. They wouldn't put the wrong label on the bottles. You certainly did set things humming, Miss Wentworth," he added, laughing and raising his hat.

"Wait a moment, Doctor Jenkins," persisted Joan. "I am so anxious about the doctor. He ought not to have gone; he was in no condition to go, and yet a man's life is at stake."

The doctor's face became at once impenetrable. He seemed to be on his guard against her. He seemed to know more than she, Doctor Lancaster's fiancée, knew; it was humiliating and ironical, but Joan saw that to question him, even if she had been so minded, was useless.

She was not minded. That would be a disloyal act toward her lover. Soon she would know, and meanwhile she kept down her fears. She watched Jenkins drive away with sinking heart. And somehow the morning passed.

The hours of afternoon were leaden ones. Five o'clock came at last, with no cessation of the downpour, and Joan went out and paced the rain-soaked veranda endlessly, looking anxiously in the direction of the station, though she knew that it must be at least two hours before she could hope to see Jenkins' buggy again on its way up the hill.

Through the lowering western clouds the sun, emerging for a moment, streaked the west with angry crimson splashes. Lancaster must be nearly home. But it was no use waiting there, where her fears grew from moment to moment. She went into the building, and saw the matron standing within her door. Suddenly she sensed the reflection of her own fears in Mrs. Fraser's heart; she knew the woman was doing nothing as she stood there, was waiting, like herself, and in the same manner, hoping against hope for the doctor's safe return. Impulsively Joan entered the room. She could keep silence no longer. She broke down, sobbing distractedly.

"I am afraid something has happened to the doctor," she wept.

"Now you sit down in that chair, Miss Wentworth," said Mrs. Fraser kindly. "It's been a trying day. But Doctor Lancaster will be home in an hour, and there's no use becoming anxious about him. Heavens, if we got anxious before we had cause, what should we do?"

"I know," sobbed the girl. "But I can't bear waiting. I know something has happened to him."

"Now, my dear, you are all worked up about him," she said. "He won't come to any harm. He can't come to harm when he went straight to his own hospital," she added.

But she spoke without conviction. Joan's hysterical mood was infecting her, increasing her own fears and forebodings.

"I reckon you know, Miss Wentworth, how much Doctor Jenkins and I feel we owe to you for taking care of the doctor," she said, seating herself at the girl's side. "And for getting that man out of the place, my dear. He's a devil—he's the doctor's devil, Miss Wentworth. And no harm can come to the doctor with you watching for him and praying for him."

Joan looked up at her with troubled face. "Mrs. Fraser, I am so much at a loss," she said. "Doctor Jenkins and you have known Doctor Lancaster so long, and I am a stranger here. I am like a child in comparison with you, so far as knowledge of Doctor Lancaster is concerned. I have been fighting his physical troubles, and I do not know his mental ones. That is what puts me at a loss. How can I know that Doctor Lancaster's enemies are not waiting for him, or have not hurt him?"

The matron placed her hand on the girl's knee. "Why, my dear, Doctor Lancaster has no enemies," she said. "How could such a splendid man have enemies? Of course there are troubles; who hasn't them? And it may be there's things that Doctor Jenkins and I don't know—I've thought there might be. But we've only been here three years, and that was long after the doctor's troubles began. And of course we never listened to the village gossip. But oh, Miss Wentworth, you can't imagine the sorrow in our hearts when we saw that splendid man giving way to his habit, and letting it creep over him little by little and gain the mastery."

"At first, when I came here, it was only at times that he'd take the morphine, and then he'd have terrible outbursts of rage, and his mind would go, especially when he'd have those fits after he came back from Avonmouth. But after that the hoodoo got him. That was when I was afraid."

"The hoodoo?" inquired Joan.

"Miss Wentworth, the devil who was at him so long got hold of him once or twice. I've seen him come back from Avonmouth a different man, Miss Wentworth. That's when I've been afraid. Because the devil that can kill the body isn't much of a devil, but when he kills the soul there is no help but prayer. When he's in those dreadful moods he's another man. He's a wicked man, Miss Wentworth, and I'd shoot him then. If he tried to harm me or any of mine, and I wouldn't think I'd killed Doctor Lancaster. It all began after they accused him of stealing the trust funds."

"It is not true," said Joan.

"I'm sure it isn't, Miss Wentworth. But you see old Doctor Lancaster didn't leave the charge of the fund to his son; he left it in the care of the trustees. And there were complications about the hospital at Avonmouth. And then, after the doctor's bride ran away on the eve of their marriage—it changed all his nature."

"I have heard of that," said Joan quietly. "But we must not discuss that in the doctor's absence."

"Why, everybody knows about that, Miss Wentworth. Before it happened they say the doctor was the most respected man in Lancaster. He'd been born here, you know, on the plantation down in the valley Millville way. She was a Miss Reid. She came from Farnley county. She was the reigning belle there, admired and flattered, and it turned her heart to a stone to have all the men after her, crazy to marry her. The doctor was a young man then, and he couldn't see any further into her heart, such as it was, than the rest of them."

"She led the doctor a chase before she promised him, they say. But the very day before their marriage was to have been she left her home without a word to anyone, to go off with another man who's never been discovered. That broke the doctor up. He took to drugs then, they tell me. The institute had been a big place before; it stood over on Morley's hill, but it burned down one night, and we took this old farm house. And the doctor was using the funds, they said, and wasn't responsible at all."

"The trustees found that the money was gone. Nobody knew where it went, because the doctor had his own inheritance, and he wasn't the man to steal or squander. They wouldn't do anything to him, because of his family, but they put Mr. Myers in charge of the finances. That's all. None of us liked him, but what could we do about it? He was here when Doctor Jenkins and I were appointed, and as soon as we understood how matters were we agreed to stay as long as we could and try to help the doctor."

"Mrs. Fraser, I want to know why Mr. Myers incited Doctor Lancaster to use morphine," said Joan.

"Miss Wentworth—"

"You know he did. You told me so. And Doctor Jenkins knows."

The matron looked agitated. "What could we do?" she cried. "Suppose we knew, what can two people do against a man like Myers? Suppose we had said so, who would have believed us? We did all we could do; and we all love the doctor and would rather stay with him and help where we could than be discharged and do nothing."

ROMAN COINS FOUND IN ENGLAND OLD REGIME

LONDON—Interest in excavation of Roman remains seems to be receiving new impetus in many parts of England and work is being carried on at Dorchester on the Somerset seaboard is yielding highly important results.

These excavations had their beginning after a ploughman casually turned up small quantity of coins which upon examination were found to be of Roman origin. The work has now been taken in hand, by an archaeologist, R. E. Godwin, who reports the recovery of no fewer than 4,000 coins.

"I have already found 4,000 bronze coins," said Mr. Godwin. "and stray ones are being added from a day to day. They are in excellent preservation and date from A. D. 22 to A. D. 400 (21 years before the Roman conquest of Britain to just before the final evacuation). They belong to practically every period of the Roman Empire, and it is remarkable that apparently no two are exactly alike. The field in which I am working was used by the ancient Britons as a camp, and this was afterwards taken over by the Romans."

She looked at Joan piteously, like a child caught in wrong-doing.

"I know you did your best," answered the girl. "But why should Doctor Lancaster stay here in Myers' power, instead of at his home in Avonmouth, where he is respected and powerful? Nothing of all this is known there."

The matron wrung her hands. "I don't know," she answered. "I suppose that man has had him by the throat in more ways than we know. Whenever the doctor used to go to Avonmouth Mr. Myers would go with him, and generally he'd come back with him. Miss Wentworth, till you came here the doctor wasn't a man; what with his drugs and the hold Mr. Myers had over him, he was just a machine. And Mr. Myers was the driver."

Joan had the feeling that she should not listen to the matron's talk about Lancaster; it seemed disloyal of her; but she felt, too, that she must know more, and speedily, if she was to thwart that menacing evil which she sensed more and more clearly as the moments passed.

"Miss Wentworth," said the matron, placing her hand on the girl's arm firmly, "there's something else I ought to have told you about, Mrs. Dana—"

"Hark!" interrupted Joan, holding up her hand for silence.

Then they heard, a long distance away, and inaudible to one whose attention was not strained, like theirs, the sound of the wheels of Jenkins' buggy.

SOONERS WINDING UP TRAINING WEEK

Two Regulars to Be Out of Game Saturday on Aggie Field

(By the Associated Press)

NORMAN, Okla., Oct. 29.—Stung by the memory of their defeat last Saturday when Drake took the long end of a 28 to 0 score, the University of Oklahoma football squad is winding up a week of intensive training for its annual clash with the Oklahoma A. and M. college team at Stillwater Saturday. The games promises to be one of the hardest on the university schedule this season.

Coach Ben G. Owen is making no attempt to teach the team new tricks, but will rely upon the line attack which defeated Nebraska. Most of the scrimmage periods this week have been devoted to perfecting defense to stop the Aggie backs.

The Sooners will enter the game without the services of two veteran linemen. White, guard, is still out with a broken wrist, received in the Nebraska game, and Penick, tackle, sustained a broken finger in the Drake contest which will keep him on the sidelines. Roy Gaffey was counted upon to replace Penick, but an X-ray examination revealed that a "charley horse" which has kept him limping two weeks was a fractured leg bone. He cannot play Saturday, trainers say.

Bill and McKinney are slated to fill in at tackle, while Wallace will continue to plug the hole at guard.

"Goat" Lamb, right halfback and punter, who frequently has been forced to leave the field this season because of an injured shoulder, may not start the game at Stillwater. Bill Haller, who was one of the most consistent ground gainers for the Sooners in the Drake game is in line for Lamb's place.

More than 1,000 Sooners, including the "Ruf Neks" and "Jazz Hounds," student pep orders and university band will be in the stands Saturday to cheer the O. U. warriors. Arrangements have been completed for a special train to take the rooters to Stillwater Saturday morning returning to Norman after the game.

Saturday's contest will be the fifteenth clash between the schools since 1914. Only once, in 1917, have the Aggies been victorious. The score in 1922 was a tie 3-3. The Sooners won 12-0 last year.

Intense interest in Legion circles, particularly, has been created by the announcement of the proposed visit to Oklahoma by James Drain, National Commander of the American Legion.

With only two cities of Oklahoma in the Legion Leader's itinerary for the first visit to Oklahoma, hundreds of veterans have declared their intention to greet Drain at Muskogee, on November 24, where he will remain from Monday afternoon, the 24th until the following morning when he will board the train for Tulsa.

Only tentative plans for the entertainment of General Drain have yet been made by the Muskogee veterans. The commander has informed Department Commander Jim Hatcher that the primary purpose of this first visit to Oklahoma is the opportunity to meet the veterans in U. S. Veterans Hospital No. 90 in the Soldiers' Memorial hospital. Drain is now making a tour of U. S. Veterans hospitals throughout the nation, as well as the orphaned and dependent children of former service men.

Later in the Legion year, in all probability during the annual conference of post commanders, adjutants and service officers, at Oklahoma City, Commander Drain will make an official visit to the Oklahoma Department when a number of state Legion centers will be visited as well as the hospitals provided by the state of Oklahoma for the disabled service men of the World war.

A number of gatherings of Forty at Eight voyagers, fun auxiliary to the Legion, were held during the past week to honor R. D. Turner, St. Louis, sous chef de chemin de fer or commonly known as national vice president.

The national officer's first visit to Oklahoma was at Tulsa where a dinner for the 40 at 8 society and a later joint meeting with the American Legion were held. The following evening, October 23, Turner was entertained at Bartlesville. An inspection of the Okmulgee Society was also held, after which the national officer left for Oklahoma City. At the Capitol City the entertainment climax proved to be the "Grande Dinner" of the Society held Saturday evening at the Elks Hall when the more than 150 voyagers gathered for a grand dinner and entertainment. Turner will return to Oklahoma City for the Armistice Day celebration.

The new national chaplain of the American Legion, the Reverend Joe Lanerkan of Durand, Ill., is well known to hundreds of Oklahoma service men, having served as chaplain with the 90th Division.

A record promenade of the 40 at 8 Society was recently held at Mangum when over 50 "Poor Goofs" were initiated into the mysteries of the "Fun Auxiliary." T. P. Gilmer, Grand Chef de Gare, state president, presided over the initiation, while the "wrecking crew" of Comanche county with headquarters at Lawton did the "dirty work."

With but few exceptions, each of the 300 Legion posts throughout Oklahoma will stage a public celebration on Armistice Day. An all day celebration is planned by the Okmul-gee Post, with parades, ball games and a public dance as part of the announced entertainment. At Muskogee the annual "Legion Follies" will be given to outfit money for the "disabled fund." Clinton county will hold a county-wide celebration at Walters, with a county-wide promenade of the 40 at 8, the same evening at Hastings.

Probably one of the largest celebrations will be at Chelsea, where a program consisting of a free barbecue, football games, parades, rodeo, carnival and dances is expected to draw crowds from all points in Northeast Oklahoma.

The Oklahoma City celebration is scheduled to be one of the "noisiest" in the state, with all manner of noise makers from firecrackers to heavy artillery announcing to the world the veterans celebration of the end of the war.

Detailed Report Of State Resources Plan at University

NORMAN, Oct. 29.—(Special)—A detailed geological report dealing largely with the geology and mineral resources of the mountainous region of McCurtain county has just been published by the Oklahoma Geological Survey, according to Dr. C. N. Gould, director. The bulletin written by Dr. C. W. Honess, and entitled "Geology of the Southern Ouachita Mountains of Oklahoma," is considered one of the best scientific reports of its kind ever issued in Oklahoma.

The report contains 354 pages in addition to a number of maps, charts and illustrations.

Several thousands of copies are available for distribution. The law requires the survey to charge a small fee for the report, according to Doctor Gould.

ROOSEVELT MIXES IN NEW YORK IN STIFF BATTLE WITH SMITH FOR REINS OF STATE AFFAIRS

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—New York's gubernatorial campaign, which impartial observers concede is the most hotly contested in years, has attracted national attention because of the prominence of the two leading candidates—Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, former assistant secretary of the navy.

Although the issues involved are mainly state ones, the campaign between one of the most popular men who ever sat in the governor's chair at Albany and the son of the former president has been closely watched by the Democratic and Republican national leaders.

Governor Smith, seeking a third term, has made his campaign solely on his record in office. When eliminated as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president he explained he had given many of his best years to the state and that he would welcome a respite from office. As the weeks sped by, however, the demands that he again head the state ticket became so insistent that he finally yielded. When the Democratic state convention assembled at Syracuse the governor was nominated by acclamation.

Colonel Roosevelt, known as "Young Teddy," whose name went before the Republican state convention at Rochester as one of several favorites for the nomination, emerged a victor on the first ballot, and thus after 26 years another Roosevelt is running for governor of New York.

He decided that the first great issue of the campaign was economy in administration. The second, he said, was tax reduction, and the third "the practical and unselfish reorganization of the state department." In his speeches he has contended that the Republican party in the state and nation was more economical and more conducive to prosperity than its leading opponent. He charged that the consolidation of state department as urged by Governor Smith, would bring important control and under the hand of Tammany Hall. As to prohibition, he arranged the present state administration for repealing the state enforcement act, and promised to work for re-adoption of a state law in conformity with the Volstead act.

Governor Smith has maintained that his department consolidation scheme, insofar as it has been put into effect by the joining of the highway department, the department of public works and the department of public buildings, has saved the state $800,000. Other consolidations, he has declared, were prevented by a Republican Assembly, which also blocked his efforts for a "more business-like administration of the state's business affairs." He also has pointed out that the Democratic regime has reduced income and property taxes by 25 percent.

The biographies of Colonel Roosevelt and Governor Smith have almost state functions under political most nothing in common. The governor, popularly known as "Al," was born 51 years ago on New York's lower East side—he was literally raised on the sidewalks of New York. He left school when he was 13 years old to support his mother. Fighting against the heavy odds which are placed in the way of a boy who grows up in such surroundings, he has risen to the governorship and is known as "the champion vote getter of New York."

Colonel Roosevelt lives in Oyster Bay, his father's home. He is 37 years old, but does not look it. He holds a B. A. degree and an honorary M. T. from Harvard, his father's alma mater. Like the first T. R., he earned his rank in war, fighting in the world conflict first as a captain in the British army and later as a major in the Twenty-Sixth U. S. Infantry of which he subsequently became lieutenant colonel. He was wounded in action and holds several decorations.

The parallel between father and son extends to personality. Frank W. Mondell, former representative from Wyoming, who accompanied the nominee on part of his tour of the state, said Colonel Roosevelt's mannerisms and appearance reminded him constantly of the late president. He has the Roosevelt smile, the Roosevelt face and the Roosevelt voice. One of the newspaper correspondents with the Roosevelt party on its whirlwind tour of the state, a man who stumped with T. R., sr., while the candidate spoke and readily imagine that the leader of the Rough Riders was in action once more.

But Colonel Roosevelt has frequently reminded his hearers that he does not want them to vote for him "simply because of who my father was." He asks their support on the basis of his own ability.

Both Governor Smith and Colonel Roosevelt have made extensive tours of the state. The Republican candidate, however, was the more ambitious, for he made a three weeks' trip covering all sections. On his schedule were more than 200 speeches, many of them near platform talks in small towns.

The governor, handicapped at the outset of his active campaign by an attack of rheumatism that necessitated cancellation of his speaking tour for John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee, swung into action more than a week after Roosevelt had started. His itinerary took him through the southern, western and central tier counties, where he delivered several speeches.

Governor Smith's popularity is attested by the size of the vote given him in the record breaking Republican year 1920. In that election the state by more than 1,000,000 votes, yet Nathan L. Miller, the Republican gubernatorial candidate, defeated Smith by a plurality of only 75,000. In 1922 Smith swamped Miller by a plurality of nearly 400,000. Smith was first elected governor in 1918, when he was elected over former Governor Charles S. Whitman by a substantial plurality.

The gin here has ginned up to this time, 335 bales of cotton and it is expected that they will gin at least 100 more.

The Oklahoma Pipe Line Co. still has a large crew of men at work at their relay station. They have erected an office building and a large steel oil tank that will hold 37,950 barrels. They are now erecting five cottages of five rooms tanks, a brick building for ice and electric power and a large brick and steel building for the installment of their pumping machinery. They have on the ground a number of cars of heavy machinery and more to unload that will be installed as soon as the buildings are completed. They have also erected a garage with five stalls for cars. When all of this is complete it will be almost a little city of its own.

The farmers that are renting have contracted for their farms for another year. They will soon have their crops gathered and will move on their new farms and get ready for another crop.

It is hard to say just how this box will go at the election. The people seem so much dissatisfied with the way the primary was conducted it is very hard to tell how they will vote.

If the open fall holds on for a few more weeks the cotton crop will be picked, ginned and marketed.

The oil people out on section 19 are still at work. They are now down about 2700 feet but have struck easy ground and are getting along slowly.

Everything in the financial line is getting much better since the cotton crop has been put on the market. The banks, merchants and farmers will be in much better financial condition at the beginning of next year.

It is hoped here by the enterprising citizenship of Francis that the road running up the Canadian river to the new bridge will be put in good condition so the people can drive their cars to the bridge when they are waiting to cross the river. Judging from the talk of voters here, the court house bonds will lose at this box by a large majority.

The houses in Francis are almost all occupied and we are sure that the cold weather this winter will bring on a scarcity of living places.

Farm Column

I am wearing a smile on both sides of my face just now. One side is smiling because so many old subscribers are paying up and the other because so many new ones are joining the News family of readers.

The cotton season is rapidly approaching an end. The bulk of the crop is out and another week of fair weather will see practically all of it out, except perhaps in some of the sandy land sections of the county. Of course a good many will have remnants to pick when the matured green bolls now on the stalks open and these will run up the total for the season somewhat. On a round I made Tuesday I noticed that for the most part cotton now in the fields is rather scattering, except between Stonewall and Lula, where I saw some good picking.

I dropped in at the Frisco gin Tuesday and J. W. Denton, the manager, stated that he is practically through for the season. He said he has had a good run this fall and is well satisfied with it. He thinks his total output will be just a shade under 1,000 bales.

Talk about outdoor attractions, right now is the time for nature lovers of all shades to be out in the woods. To the artistic eye the many colored leaves as far as one can see offer a constant joy. To the more materially minded the falling pecans, hickory nuts, persimmons and possum grapes present a strong drawing card. Of course the possum hunters are right now in their glory for the animals should be fat and juicy and easy to find amid the persimmon thickets.

On the Pad Again.

Tuesday afternoon I took a walk from Frisco to Union Valley. Walking is not altogether a joy along that road just now, for Commissioner Pace is having it worked from end to end. However, if it ever rains again and the road dragged after that it will be in the best shape it has been in for a long time. Mr. Pace believes in good roads, as the highways of his district for a year past have demonstrated.

Some good looking fields are to be seen on this road and I noticed a few patches of wheat that are up and looking like they were holding their own. I stopped a few minutes at W. R. Riddle's home. He was busy gathering potatoes and already had a lot of them stored in his big potato house, one of the biggest houses of the kind in the state. It will hold 10,000 bushels, but this year it will not likely be filled to capacity. When I began my tramps over the county three years ago the first place in the county I visited was the Riddle home and this trip brought me back where I started.

The Union Valley school is now going. It is under the management of Prof. Dean and three assistants. This is not only one of the best schools in the county, but it is one of the best located. It is in an attractive grove alongside a pretty spring branch that seldom, if ever, goes dry and is provided with a comfortable teacherage. Mr. Dean said the school is preparing for a Hallowe'en carnival for Friday evening of this week. While here I met Ray Allen, one of the hustling club boys of the county. Ray was one of the winners of a trip to the state fair. In fact, three of the Allen family won trips. Last year Ray won a trip to Chicago and is doing his best to win again this year.

Mr. Bishop has a little store near the school house and of course I never make a trip in that vicinity without stopping in for a few minutes and am usually wanting a cigar to keep me company when I start out again.

John Sparks told me that the potato crop of this, one of the best known potato growing communities in the state, will be short this year. The acreage was cut about half and then the crop is giving only about a 50 percent yield. Mr. Sparks figured out some 11 or 12 potato houses in this community and said a government bulletin credited Union Valley with about one-third of the potato houses of the state.

Across the road F. F. Falter was storing his potatoes. He is well fixed for taking care of his crop, although, as stated above, it will not be so heavy this season.

It did me good to see how the thousands of people enjoyed the circus Thursday. It was the first time a big show had been here for several years and even if one had been here the people were in such distressful condition that a large part of them could not have raised the money to go. Certainly they were entitled to a big time and I think most of them had it. To see people who had had little but hard times for the past four years come in with plenty of money to take in the show and enjoy the day was certainly something to rejoice over.

Speaking of circuses, I remember the first one I ever attended. That was 33 years ago when I was 16 years old. I had never seen an elephant, a camel or anything else that grew in regions outside of Western Texas where prairie dogs, jack rabbits and coyotes were the principal animals, so that day with a little money I had made picking cotton I headed for the big show, 17 miles away. I intended going with a neighbor family, but they left half an hour before I got there and I was on hand at sunup at that. I walked most of the way there and when I had a good downhill road I ran a few hundred yards occasionally to make sure I arrived in time for the parade. I also walked and ran some five or six miles of the way back home, making not less than 20 miles for the day. But—I saw the circus.

Egyptian Sheik, Prince, Captures American Actress for Bride

The marriage of Pearl Shepard, New York actress, and Prince Mohammed Ali Ibrahim of Egypt has just become known, a year after it took place. Miss Shepard, whose real name is Ginsberg, has been traveling with the prince for more than a year, but it was not known that they were married. It was necessary for her to embrace the Mohammedan faith to become his bride.

NEWSNOTES FROM MOVIELAND

Every so often we hear the cry that we must have new faces in pictures. Well there is one company that supplies this need so fast that it fairly makes one dizzy. One week they announce that Cecil DeMille has nominated and elected a little unknown by the name of Vera Reynolds to star in a big production, the next we hear that a movie, Betty Bronson, has been assigned to the role of "Peter Pan," which leaves us shivering in anticipation—wondering if Jesse Lasky and Sir James Barrie have killed our immortal boy or whether a new wonder star has risen in the movie sky.

And now they have given the leading role in "The Swan," in which Elsie Ferguson was to have come back to the screen, to Frances Howard, a young woman who has never before been in pictures. Miss Howard, however, has this advantage over Vera and Betty, she has already—although only 19—made her mark as a talented and trained actress of the speaking stage. She was a member of the cast of "Best People," playing at the Lyceum theatre, New York City, when Jesse L. Lasky happened to attend a performance. With Mr. Lasky was Miss Sari Fedak, wife of Mr. Molnar, author of "The Swan," and when Frances appeared Miss Fedak remarked that there was the girl to take Miss Ferguson's place.

Next day screen tests were taken, the results were satisfactory and Frances was launched on her film career.

Frances Howard was born in Chicago and ran away from home when only 14 to go on the stage. She obtained a small part in the musical comedy "Oh, Lady, Lady," played in another musical show and then got her first part in straight comedy in "The Charm School." She also appeared in "The Intimate Strangers" with Billie Burke, in "Dangerous People," "Swiftly" and other productions. During the summer she played leads in stock companies.

"The Swan" was produced with great success on the stage with Eva Le Gallienne in the title role. The Polish director, Buchowetski, will direct and Ricardo Cortez and Adolphe Menjou are the male leads.

Mae Marsh and little daughter are "at home" in Hollywood; they tell us, after several months in Europe where Mae played the lead in "Arabella."

Eugene O'Brien and Laura LaPlante are to have the leads in Pamela Wynne's novel, "Ann's an Idiot," which will appear on the screen as "Dangerous Innocence." We are also told that Mary Philbin has been chosen by Rupert Julian for the part of Christine in "The Phantom of the Opera."

Alma Rubens has completed Universal's "Stairway of Hope" and will appear next in a Graham Wilcox production to be made abroad. This is the company that produced "Chu Chin Chow" and "Southern Love" with Betty Blythe.

Pedro de Cordova, of "The Bandido" company, has been visiting friends in Spain since the scenes for the picture were "shot" there and has just returned to this country.

Charming Lois Wilson has finished several weeks' work in "North of 36" and feels it is her best part since she played the heroine in "The Covered Wagon."

Florence Vidor has an entirely new role in "The Mirage," her next starring picture. She will be a chorus girl and singer in a roof show. Clive Brook, English actor, plays with her, also Alan Roscoe, who played opposite Margaret Livingston in her first starring picture, "The Chorus Lady."

sas, and former Dean of O. B. U. will be the principal speaker at the opening session.

After the class meetings Saturday morning, The Alumni and student body will parade in the downtown district of Shawnee. Prizes are being offered for the best decorated car. Immediately following the parade the Alumni will have their annual Alumni luncheon. The annual tug-of-war between the freshman and sophomore classes will be held at 2 o'clock. The losing team will be pulled through a stream of water thrown by the fire department. The O. B. U. band will entertain the football fans with a band concert before the game begins.

Many O. B. U. students of last year who are teaching in various parts of the state are expected to attend and they will be admitted to all the festivities free. No pains are being spared to make the Homecoming program an unqualified success.

CHURCH MEMBERS HAVE SURPRISE FOR THEIR PASTOR

The pastor of the Oak Avenue Baptist church, Rev. McCulley and family were greatly surprised Tuesday night when the folk began to crowd in with something in a sack and all wore a smile. It took the pastor some time to get himself together when he saw the crowd and what they left in the kitchen. Lots of good things to eat. Everybody had a good time. The ladies served cake and chocolate.

The family was greatly elated over the visit. The baby girl was asleep and just after the folk had gone she awoke and she was told that old Santa had come, when she saw the many good things.

The pastor is very happy in the work. A splendid prayer meeting was held last night with good attendance. The fellowship and spirit is fine. The pastor is anxious to get acquainted with the church family.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

LET US NOT BE WEARY IN WELL DOING for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.

As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith.—Galatians, 6:9, 10.

The $650,000 appropriation for the aid of weak schools is still hanging fire in the supreme court, this time on a motion for rehearing. To us the action of the man or men who are trying to prevent this money from being paid out is without any justification whatever. The districts that are to benefit from the appropriation went their limit in taxes and were still unable to give the children a full term. As we see it every child in the state should have an equal opportunity to secure an education and it is the state's duty to provide such opportunity. Furthermore, in this instance the teachers relying on the appropriation, taught the terms contracted for and if the appropriation is held up it will work a severe hardship on them. Certainly it is not fair to beat them out of their hard earned money.

The world is apparently swinging back into safe and sane paths again. The pessimists said that it would never recover from the devastation and waste occasioned by the World war but its recovery has been rapid and will be still more rapid as things adjust themselves. There is still much to be done but where people are working traces of the war damage are being rapidly effaced. Another generation will see few traces of the havoc wrought by the clash of arms, but its memory will be so fresh that it will not be easy to start another general war. At least that is the outlook now and the end towards which all friends of peace are working.

October is with us and fall is here to stay its allotted time. October is the month when vegetation goes through its various stages of dying. Nature paints the leaves of the forest a variety of colors and amid the brilliance of gaudy hues nature withdraws her hand from growing things and retires for half a year of rest. October is the month when nuts begin to fall. Edgar Allan Poe painted the month as one of the most dreary of the year, but with us it is one of the best, since most of the crops are gathered and stored during its stay with us.

One of the former kaiser's sons is reported to be working in a Berlin bank. When a man goes to work there is hope for him and the young Hohenzollern may yet develop into a real man. One reads of many Russian princes, counts and generals who are now employed in various capacities, some of them as waiters in cafes. One cannot rejoice in the misfortune of these men but at least they are getting a taste of what life has meant to the great majority of the race. The war proved a leveler and the high and mighty have fallen into what they consider evil days.

The Tulsa World gives the best example we know of how a disappointed candidate feels. Gene Lorton has had a rather poor opinion of the Republican party ever since Harding blighted his ambition to be sent to Europe as a diplomat and then to cap everything he was badly beaten for the nomination for senator last August. Gene then bolted the ticket good and plenty and one would never suspect from the tirades against W. B. Pine, his successful opponent, that the two men are supposed to be members of the same party. Some men are ugly customers when their vanity is wounded.

It takes a long time for things to percolate through the heads of some people. John R. Clark, of Oklahoma City, says he is going to run for governor two years hence on a light wine and beer platform. This in the face of the fact that Oklahoma has been dry since statehood and that we now have a national prohibition law. Perhaps Clark has not heard of these facts, for he would hardly claim to be a big enough man to repeal both state and national laws.

According to the New York Times election betting in Wall street is lagging this year. Either the men in the habit of betting have lost interest or else are too much up in the air to know where to place their money. With the general apathy that marks this year's campaign one man's guess is as good as another's. With the election only a month away campaigners will have to get a hustle on themselves if they create much enthusiasm.

The News is in receipt of an offer of a volume of Who's Who in America for the bargain price of $7.75. We are not particularly interested in the proposition, but have an idea that 25,357 of the books will be sold, since that is the number of thumb nail sketches of celebrities it contains. Outsiders are not bothering much about the ones who succeeded in being listed among the immortals.

William Gilbert states that a few markers to show travelers the way to the new Canadian bridge are badly needed on the north side of the river. His opinion is that with a little work a great stream of traffic can be diverted this way.

THE LONG, LONG TRAIL

WORLD MOVIE MEN MAY HOLD MEETING

Geneva May See Union of Movie Men at General Conference

(By the Associated Press)
GENEVA—Declaring that there are at least 50,000 cinema halls in the world and that the moving picture is steadily increasing as an international force for good or evil, Julian Luchaire, Honorary Professor of Grenoble University, France, and Inspector-General of Public Education, recently urged the League of Nations committee on Intellectual Co-operation to convene an International Cinematograph congress which would bring together representatives of promoters, producers, authors, artists, critics and directors.

Professor Luchaire hailed the motion picture as one of the most important movements in the history of intellectual life in the course of the last 20 years. He said its influence on the popular mind is only a parallel in that of the theatre in the cities of ancient Greece, and that of the daily press in modern nations since the nineteenth century. He estimated that, taking the average number of spectators to be 300 in each of the 50,000 world cinema halls, and keeping in mind that each picture is usually repeated ten times, a film which goes all over the world, as many do, is seen in a relatively short space of time by 150,000,000 persons.

Undoubtedly, said Professor Luchaire, the impression made upon this enormous public is superficial compared with the influence of certain books which have taken years or centuries to impress themselves on the human race, certain sacred books, for instance, but it is a striking fact that only the Bible and the Koran have an indisputably larger circulation than that of the latest film from Los Angeles. He said that the cinema has been adapted to religious propaganda in various countries, and that in the United States it is estimated that about 25,000 churches use the screen as an adjunct to the pulpit. For all these reasons and for the additional one that the cinema has come intrinsically international, Professor Luchaire held that it should be included within the scope of the activities of the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation.

The future alone will divulge the speaker insisted, whether the cinema is to have high educational value and the elevating and ennobling influence which the theatre seems to have had on the masses in ancient Greece, or the debasing influence of vulgar music hall shows or of cheap novels. The French professor said he was convinced that great things could be accomplished by an international conference in the way of leading the cinema into channels which would be productive of good for humanity.

LIFE CREWS GO TO AID OF SCHOONER PASSENGERS

(By the Associated Press)
BEAUFORT, N. C., Sept. 30.—Life crews have gone from here to the rescue of the crew of an unidentified four-master schooner, which is believed to have sunk about 10 miles south on the Newport bar either last night or early this morning. The crew was sighted early this morning in a yawl astern of the ship, officers of a Ft. Macon cutter stated.

MOST EAST CENTRAL GRADUATES ARE TEACHING

Occasionally the question is asked: "What percentage of students enrolled in a Teachers College actually are preparing to teach?"

A question of this kind is a little bit difficult to answer because some students do not fully have their minds made up as to what they will do after completing their course. However, a study recently conducted by the faculty of East Central reveals the fact that 87 percent of the teachers employed in the East Central District received all of a part of their training at East Central. This includes teachers in independent districts as well as teachers in rural schools. In some counties the percentage runs as high as 95 percent.

Another indication of the large percentage of students preparing for teaching is shown in this: Last year the Institution granted 559 two-year state certificates, 304 life diplomas, and conferred 61 degrees making a total of 924 state certificates in one year. This does not include several hundred who raised their county certificates from third grade to second or from second grade to first grade. Neither does it include several hundred who attended during the last year, and will continue to attend until they receive their life diplomas or degrees, and then engage in teaching. It is very probable that from 90 percent to 95 percent of the students attending East Central plan eventually to become teachers.

Training teachers is not the only function of a state teachers college but it is the principal one, and the students of East Central are very largely recruited from two groups: First, those who have already taught and wish to improve themselves for further service. Second, those who have completed high school somewhere and are planning to teach when they have had some college training. These two groups form the bulk of the student body.

If to these is added a third group namely, those who wish to prepare for engineering, law, medicine, or pharmacy and come here to do two years of college work before embarking on their highly specialized courses in these respective professions practically the entire student body is included.

DEPARTMENT OF FINE ARTS.

The Department of Fine Arts has been organized for the purpose of giving class and individual instruction in art, music, public speaking and expression. Regular courses for class work in these subjects are described under the appropriate heading on preceding pages of this bulletin. For the purpose of more intensive study of these subjects, however, provision has been made for private lessons under favorable conditions and under competent instructors. This department offers one of the most fruitful fields for individual development of any in the institution. A knowledge and appreciation of the fundamental principles of fine arts is universal, recognized as of prime importance in a liberal education. It is in these courses that the creative and imaginative powers of the human mind find development, and in which adequate training of the eye, hand and mind are developed for pleasing self-expression.

The college endeavors to surround each student with an atmosphere of musical and art appreciation by affording an opportunity through a series of entertainments and recitals of hearing artists of recognized talent and reputation, and by offering each year a number of special college recitals by the faculty and the students of the Fine Arts Department.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

The courses of instruction in the Department of Fine Arts comprise those already described under public school music, public school art and public speaking, and in addition courses in private instruction in expression and dramatic art, piano, voice, violin, wind instruments, orchestra, band and incidental instruction in musical literary organizations. The course includes a four-year curriculum in public school music, piano, voice, violin or other musical instruments leading to the Bachelor of Arts Degree in Music, and a two-year curriculum in art, piano, voice, violin and public speaking leading to a special diploma or certificate.

ORCHESTRA WORK ATTRACTS INTEREST

Considerable interest is being manifested in the two orchestras which have been organized by Professor Montin this Fall. Twenty students are enrolled in the class in Advanced Orchestra, and twelve in Beginners' Orchestra.

Members of the Advanced Orchestra will make a number of public appearances in the near future at the assembly hour, and also in the local churches and Sunday Schools and civic organization.

The Advanced Orchestra is composed of the following students:

Lillian Strike, Anna Louise Marshall, Catherine Yates, Billie Adick, Blady Carrick, Pearl Rae, Bernice White, Beatrice Collier, Mildred McNair, Mrs. V. G. Looney, Glenn Spencer, Charlie Jackson, Brown Mackin, Harold Allen, Burgess Steed, Guy Meaders, Glenn Hughes, Marie Cropper, Dorothy Vincent.

BRITISH DOCTORS OPPOSE INSURANCE ACT SYSTEM

LONDON.—The National Medical Union, which claims to speak for some 16,000 British physicians, is on the warpath against the panel system of medical treatment under the National Insurance Act.

The National Medical Union is now hard at work completing the case which it hopes to establish against the panel system which is to be investigated in October by a Royal Commission whose membership includes Lord Lawrence, chairman; Sir John Anderson, Sir Humphrey Rolleston, Sir Alfred Watson, Sir Arthur Worley and Sir Andrew Duncan.

The union maintains that the panel system leads to inferior doctoring, that panel doctors are unable to give adequate attention to their long lists of patients and that the system is demoralizing and involves pauperization. The forthcoming attack will, it is expected, be the most vigorous yet launched against this phase of the National Insurance Act. Its importance may be gauged by the fact that there are now 15,000,000 panel patients in England, Scotland and Wales.

One charge against the panel system is that the panel doctor, with an enormous list of panel patients, is usually too busy to give them adequate attention. He has private patients in addition to his panel list, and in order to find time for his private patients, it is charged he must take his panel patients at high speed.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincerest thanks to all the good people who have done everything they could do to help us in our great sorrow. We are grateful to the kind neighbors and friends, who by word and kind acts expressed their sympathy. Especially do we thank Mrs. Sneed, and the ministers, Revs. Morris, Whitwell, McAdams and Blackburn who came so quickly to our aid. We also are grateful for the many beautiful flowers for they bring cheer that mere words can not bring. May God bless every one, and keep you from sorrow like mine.—Mrs. Edna Warner and children.

Rheumatism

"Good-bye old crutch!"
THERE IS positively no longer any excuse for suffering the agonies of rheumatism! Especially in the autumn of your life, when the vital organs weaken, impurities multiply and linger in the muscles and joints, as never before. It is now, just now, when you cannot afford to guess. No day returns!

Here is a joyous fact which can mean to you a fond farewell forever to all the miseries, the tortures, the body-twisting pains that you have suffered from the demon of rheumatism. It is a fact that rheumatism means "blood poverty." It is a fact with the increase of red-cells in your blood, impurities are destroyed. It is a fact that S.S.S. will help Nature build these red-blood-cells! S.S.S. is one of the most powerful blood cleansers in existence. Its results in thousands of rheumatic cases have been nothing short of amazing! The medicinal ingredients of S.S.S. are purely vegetable. This is very important to remember!
